| If no one listens to your call | |
| Then you must walk on alone. | Out of the night that covers me, |
| Move on alone, move on alone, and move on alone. | Black as the pit from pole to pole, |
| If no one speaks to you - oh, oh my hapless one, | I thank whatever gods may be |
| If everyone turns the other way; if everyone is afraid, | For my unconquerable soul. |
| Then open your heart and speak out your mind alone. | In the fell clutch of circumstance |
| If everyone turns away, oh my hapless one, | I have not winced nor cried aloud. |
| If as you walk alone on a dark road | Under the bludgeoning of chance |
| No one joins you on your journey, | My head is bloody, but unbowed. |
| Then you must crush the thorns in your path | * wince – to move the body to show pain |
| With your bleeding feet and walk ahead alone. | * bludgeon – to hit someone hard |

A small seed lay on the hard, dry ground. It felt weak and afraid of the harsh sun, but it resolved to grow. Every day it pushed a tiny root into the soil and a small shoot towards the light. Birds tried to peck at it, and heavy rains sometimes battered it, but the seedling never gave up. Slowly, it grew stronger, and its leaves reached out to the sun.

As the days passed, the seedling faced more challenges. Weeds grew around it, blocking sunlight, and insects tried to eat its tender leaves. Yet, it continued to push itself upward, learning to bend and sway with the wind without breaking. Neighbouring plants whispered stories of storms and harsh winters, but the seedling listened carefully and used the lessons to prepare itself.

Over time, the seedling became a small plant, resilient and full of life. Its leaves glistened with dew, and its roots held firmly in the ground. People who passed by admired its strength and patience. They realised that determination, persistence, and patience could overcome even the toughest challenges.

By the end of the season, the small plant had grown into a young tree. Birds began to perch on its branches, and its shade offered relief to weary travellers. The seedling's journey, from a fragile seed to a thriving tree, became an example for all: growth is not instant, but with effort, courage, and perseverance, even the smallest beginnings can lead to greatness.

11. What challenges did the seedling face in the beginning?

12. How did the people react to the growth of the seedling?

13. What helps the seedling cope with challenges?

A) Perseverance and resilience

B) Fear of challenges

C) Pessimistic outlook

D) Buckling under pressure

14. Which of the following statements are TRUE?

i) The seedling learned lessons from neighbouring plants.

ii) The seedling immediately became a tree without challenges.

iii) The tree's shade provided relief to people.

iv) The tree was not a source of rest for the birds.

A) i and iii

B) i, ii and iii

C) ii and iv

D) iii and iv
