Questions 1-5: Read the excerpt from Waiting for Rain and answer the questions that follow. (5x1=5)

Bangalore, the city where I live when not in my village Mundakkottukurissi in Kerala, was going through its windy phase. For over a week now, a brutal wind had been sweeping the northern outskirts of the city with a menacing growl. Window shutters banged. Doors unlatched themselves. Around my home, trees creaked and groaned while leaves hissed and whispered. Through night and day, the wind blew, pushing the monsoon clouds away. So, a turbulent flight into Kerala indicated possible rains. Except that, as we descended into Kochi, it seemed to have no rain either.

The grey skies suggested rain, but the blanched greenery said something else. A diffidence that leaves one feeling both helpless and powerless. How do you coax a monsoon to do what it ought to be doing? Not a drop travels with me to my village. When I was last here in June to celebrate the onset of monsoon, which I have done for many years now, the monsoon had failed to break. A few summer storms had escalated the heat, and the meteorological department said that the monsoon was lurking in the Maldives.

1. What are the expressions used in the passage to describe the wind?
2. What was the effect of the wind on the author's house in Bangalore?
3. What assumption regarding rains was made by the author from the turbulent flight?

   A) The possibility of rain. B) The rare possibility of rain.

   C) No possibility of rain. D) None of the above.

4. Why did the author usually schedule her visit during June?

   A) To experience the departure of monsoon

   B) To celebrate the onset of monsoon

   C) To avoid the onset of monsoon

   D) Not to celebrate the onset of monsoon

5. Pick out a word from the passage that means 'become more intense'.

We have not wings, we cannot soar;
But we have feet to scale and climb
By slow degrees, by more and more,
The cloudy summits of our time.
The mighty pyramids of stone
That wedge-like cleave the desert airs,
When nearer seen and better known,
Are but gigantic flights of stairs.

B) Working consistently
C) Working hastily
D) Not working consistently

7. Identify the rhyme scheme of the first stanza.

10. [A] Read the following lines from Sea Fever and prepare a note of appreciation focusing on its theme, images and poetic devices. (1x5=5)

I must go down to the seas again, for the call of the running tide
Is a wild call and a clear call that may not be denied;
And all I ask is a windy day with the white clouds flying,
And the flung spray and the blown spume, and the sea-gulls crying.
I must go down to the seas again, to the vagrant gypsy life,
To the gull's way and the whale's way where the wind's like a whetted knife;
And all I ask is a merry yarn from a laughing fellow-rover,
And quiet sleep and a sweet dream when the long trick's over.

OR

10. [B] Here are two excerpts from the poems Sea Fever by John Masefield and Remember the Old Road by Ruskin Bond. Analyse them and write a short paragraph comparing and contrasting the themes in both the poems.

Sea Fever	Remember the Old Road
I must go down to the seas again, for the call of the running tide Is a wild call and a clear call that may not be denied; And all I ask is a windy day with the white clouds flying, And the flung spray and the blown spume, and the sea-gulls crying.	Pausing and plodding and gasping for air Both road and I being a little worse for wear! But I made it to the top and stopped to rest And looked down to the valley and the silver stream Winding its way towards the plains. And the land stretched out before me, and the years fell away, And I was a boy again... *plod – to walk slowly with heavy steps, being tired *gasp – to take a quick deep breath with one's mouth open

Once there was a kind old farmer named Ravi who lived in a peaceful village. He worked hard in a field everyday and was respected for his honesty.
